

Overview

Solas Project has a vision to see all children and young people truly know their self-worth and can take full advantage of their potential. We recognise that due to societal inequalities all young people in Ireland do not have access to the same opportunities and as a result, many are prevented from reaching their full potential. We build long term relationships with young people at risk of being marginalised by society. We deliver innovative and holistic interventions seeking to equip young people to live life to the full and decide how they want to make a meaningful contribution to society. Alongside these supports we advocate for societal change to tackle the inequalities that allow young people in Ireland to grow up at a disadvantage.
